We believe that all children can learn and we will establish high standards of learning that we expect all students to achieve. It is our job to create an environment in our classrooms that engages students in academic work that results in a high level of achievement. We are confident that with our support and help students can master challenging curricula, and we expect them to do so. We are prepared to work collaboratively with colleagues, students and parents to achieve this shared educational purpose. (Dufor, 1997a).

From Your Principal

Hello, Lincoln Elementary Families!

Thank you for an amazing Fall Festival last Friday evening. The hundreds of people in attendance enjoyed perfect weather, great food and fun activities. It was wonderful to have so many families out for this annual fundraiser that directly supports our classrooms. Thank you to all our PTA members, parent volunteers, middle school and high school student volunteers, and Lincoln Elementary staff whose hard work made the evening such a success.

Now that the mornings are cooler, please remind your children to make sure they keep track of sweaters and jackets. Our lost and found, which is located in the multiuse room, is already filling up with clothing left behind on the playground. Parents are strongly encouraged to label clothing and backpacks with their children's names.

Don't forget that every Friday is Spirit Day. The class with the most spirit gets to hang the spirit banner in their class for the week. Encourage your child to wear red every Friday.

Fondly,

Logan Williams

Are you helping your child deal with frustration?

Teachers say that today's kids don't always have the skills to cope with life's minor hassles. Are you helping your child learn to deal with frustration? Answer yes or no to each question:

1. I understand that it isn't my job to protect my child from all of life's ups and downs.
2. I encourage my child to stick with it when she gets stuck on a homework problem.
3. I help my child link effort to success. Sometimes I say, "It isn't supposed to be easy. But you'll get it if you stick with it."
4. I point out real-life stories of successful people who have overcome challenges.
5. I put my child's feelings into words. "You're frustrated that learning to ride a bike is taking longer than you hoped. You'll get there."

How well are you doing? If you answered yes to most of the questions, you are giving your child opportunities to work through her frustration. For each no answer, try that idea in the quiz.
